About Neometals Ltd

Neometals Limited ("Neometals" - ASX:NMT) is a developer of technology materials projects. Neometals has two key divisions – a fully integrated lithium business and a titanium development business. Both are supported by proprietary technologies that support downstream integration and cost efficiencies.

Neometals owns a 13.8% stake in the Mt Marion lithium mine near Kalgoorlie, which operates one of the world's biggest lithium concentrators. The Mt Marion mine, and Neometals product offtake option, form the backbone to its fully-integrated lithium business aspirations which include a Lithium Hydroxide Chemical Refinery and lithium battery recycling process. The 100%-owned Barrambie Titanium Vanadium Project in WA's Mid-West is one of the world's highest grade hard rock titanium deposits.

Neometals' strategy focuses on de-risking and developing long life projects with strong partners and integrating down the value chain to increase margins. The company aims to leverage its revenue to grow opportunities that 'enable' sustainable products and to return value to shareholders.
